... Franz Spelman, who reports on "What the Hungarians Say About American Propaganda" (p. 70), observes close-up the operations of a surprising multitude of middle European radio broadcasters. He lives in Munich and is special correspondent of Newsweek magazine. Born in Vienna, he came to the United States in the 1930s to practice architecture. He served in the U. S. Army and after the war worked in Europe for the U. S. Foreign Service and then for Radio Free Europe until 1954.
